Foundation Hosts Native American History Program

The Rancho San Carlos Education Foundation, along with the Monterey Bay Cultural History Project and the Santa Lucia Conservancy, cosponsored "Back to Echilat", a Native American Cultural program on Saturday, June 8, at the Santa Lucia Preserve. Guest speakers were archaeologist, Dr. Gary Breschini and Linda Yamane, a local Rumsien descendent.

Dr. Breschini is recognized as a local expert on the history of the Rumsien and Esselen tribes which lived in the Carmel Valley area and the Big Sur coast. Dr. Breschini has spent considerable time consulting with Rancho San Carlos planners to insure protection of this resource and was a valuable asset to the Native American cultural history program. In 1992, Breschini and his archaeological team discovered and excavated a large midden (habitation) site, which was later determined to be the ancient Rumsien village of "Echilat". During the program, Dr. Breschini discussed some of the artifacts found at the Echilat site and described Echilat as a significant archeological discovery. The team recovered the remains of a stone cooking oven, tools, shells, animal bones, and decorative ear spools.

Linda Yamane is an author, story teller, artist and basket weaver. During the program, Ms. Yamane shared her Rumsien heritage through stories and songs. Ms. Yamane also discussed cultural uses of native plants and displayed and discussed her collection of baskets, a musical instrument made from the elderberry

Water District's Plan Update Reported

By Elizabeth Cowley

At its April 15 meeting the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) adopted a Strategic Plan including a mission statement, three year goals and six month objectives. A Strategic Plan progress report on the six month objectives (April - October 1996) was presented at the June 17 meeting.

Goal 1: Increase the water supply to meet community and environmental needs. By September 1, 1996 the MPWMD, in conjunction with Cal-Am, will have specifically determined how much water is needed to offset Carmel River production limits set by the State Water Resource Control Board (SWRCB). SWRCB Order 95-10 ruled that Cal-Am does not have a legal right to 10,730 acre feet of water that it has been pumping from the Carmel River and that a replacement source must be found. By October 1, 1996 the MPWMD intends to have determined whether a Seaside aquifer injection/recovery proposal is feasible and the most reasonable desalinization plant size to pursue. The district will also develop a short and long term water augmentation plan for existing and future needs by October 1, 1996.

Goal 2: Protect the quality of surface and ground water resources and continue restoration of the Carmel River environment. At its May 20 meeting the MPWMD voted to continue the Carmel River Mitigation Program for another 5 years. The mitigation program is intended to mitigate the environmental impacts of over-pumping from the Carmel River and represents 40% of the districts annual budget Goal 3: Assist Cal-Am in developing a legal water supply. The MPWMD will assist Cal-Am in developing a plan to legalize the unlawfully diverted water supply, including consideration of a desalinization plant, by October 1, 1996. The MPWMD will also prepare technical support for both the SWRCB and the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) to maximize Cal-Am's water rights by October 1, 1996.

Film Festival Opens At Forest Theater

The 2nd annual "Films in the Forest" opened recently in Carmel's beautiful amphitheater, The Forest Theater. Presented by The Forest Theater Guild, the film festival offers classic and popular movies to the general public each weeknight at 8:30 p.m. through August 7.

"Films in the Forest is a unique event for the area," reports Fritz Renner, Director of the Festival. "We are not only screening wonderful films in Carmel where both movie theaters have closed, but we are showing them outdoors under the stars." He added, "Our rustic, camp-like atmosphere is very cozy for the public. They bring blankets and picnics, sit by our bonfires and enjoy the casual setting."

The tradition of viewing movies in Carmel continues as the screen used for the festival is the one used at the old Village Theater. "It was donated to us by the current owner of the theater building, Carmel architect, John Mandurrago," notes Renner.

The remaining films include "Suspense Week" July 1-4; "Comedy Week" July 8-11; "Drama Week" July 22-25; "Romance Week" July 29-August 1; and "USC School of Cinema Week" August 5-7.

Tickets to each film are available at the door for $5 adults and $3 children under 12. A film pass, good for 27 admissions, is $50 or $1.85 per movie. The film pass can be used with friends for a total of 27 admissions to your choice of movies offered.

Carmel Valley Chamber Meeting Report

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce (CVCC) Board of Directors held its regular monthly meeting on June 20 at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station.

At its May meeting President Pamela Norton introduced Tawni Jones as the newest member of the Board of Directors. Ms. Jones is from the Running Iron Restaurant and Saloon and will be the restaurant's representative on the Board; she will be filling the seat left empty by Joe Battilega.

The CVCC membership directory will include a calendar of events and member listings by products and services. CVCC members will be included in a section of the Carmel Business Association directory in addition to 15,000 copies of the separate Carmel Valley Directory. The directory will be sent to inquiring callers and placed at the Visitors Center and in local hotels and inns.

Marjorie Loughridge, Chair of the CVCC Mixers Committee, reported that the CVCC will host a mixer at the Mid Valley Shopping Center on July 16. On August 14 there will be a kick-off event for Ranchers Days. The CVCC has been invited to a SPCA mixer to be held on August 29. The third annual Chili Cook-Off will be held on September 23 at Holman Ranch.

The next regular CVCC meeting will be held on July 18 at 5:30 pm at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station; the meeting is open to the public.

Carmel River on List for Mining

Laura Cohan of the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy reports to The Sun that the U.S. Forest Service is compiling, "... a list of river areas being evaluated for potential mining sites in California."

Four of the sixteen rivers or creeks are located in Monterey County. Water flows included on the "list" are Carmel River; The Little Sur, which is theoretically protected by the 1992 Wild and Scenic Rivers Act; Arroyo Seco River and Tassajara Creek.

Recycling Motor Oil

"One in five do-it-yourself oil changers dispose of used oil illegally by putting it in the trash, the gutter or on the ground," said Robin Salsburg, recycling coordinator for the Monterey Regional Waste Management District. "Our goal is to change all this by letting people know they can easily recycle used oil at many gas stations and auto parts stores in their neighborhoods. It's as easy as putting the oil in a plastic jug and taking it to one of the many places that accepts motor oil for recycling."

A list of locations that accept used oil is available through the Monterey Regional Waste Management District at 384-5313.

Cachagua Vintners Release 1st Wines

After 13 years of growing Cabernet Sauvignon grapes in Carmel Valley, Galante Vineyards will release its first wines. The two thousand case production of 1994 Estate Cabernet Sauvignon will be available for sale beginning July of this year.

Galante chose two of their vineyards, Red Rose Hill (1400 cases) and Blackjack Pasture (570 cases) for their first release which will retail at $25 and $30, respectively.

To announce their release, there will be a Grand Opening Concert Celebration on August 10, 1996. Country music legend, Jerry Jeff Walker, will provide the music for this outdoor celebration which includes food, wine, gifts and more. The concert will be held at Galante's 700 acre property in Carmel Valley and a portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Cachagua Community Center. Tickets are $55 per person and can be purchased by calling 1-800-Galante.

Galante Vineyards wine is hand crafted and ultra premium. Low yields per acre and new French oak barrels are just two ways Galante optimizes the characteristics of their grapes. "Our goal is to let the fruit express itself in the wine," says Jack Galante, owner/winemaker. "The wines exhibit the intense berry flavors of the varietal."

Galante is a fifth generation Carmel resident, his great-grandfather J.F. Devendorf, was the founder of Carmel. Besides the winery, Galante is also one of the largest garden rose growers in California with over 12,000 rose bushes and 90 different varieties available from May through October.

This is Adopt A Cat Month

June is Adopt a Shelter Cat month, and The SPCA will celebrate by bringing some of its feline friends to the Barnyard in Carmel, Saturday, June 22 and Saturday, June 29, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A special SPCA booth will be set up in front of Enchanted Tails, a novelty pet boutique located on the second level of the barnyard Shopping Center. Shoppers can meet SPCA adoptable shelter cats and find out more about The SPCA and its many programs.

"The SPCA receives a wide variety of cats, pure and mixed breeds each year," says Kathy Prewe, who supervises THE SPCA adoption center. SPCA has many adult cats who have lost their owners and would make ideal companions.

The Barnyard Shopping Center is located off Highway 101 and Carmel Valley Road. For information call The SPCA of Monterey County at 373-2631.

CV Fire Department Gives Child Safety Tips

HOW TO KEEP YOUR CHILD IN ONE PIECE.

Children are fragile. When on the go, proper safety precautions must be taken or tragedies can result. Transportation related injuries and fatalities that might have been prevented in one recent year are staggering.

* Motor vehicle crashes were the leading cause of death for children aged 5 through 15.

* More than 90 children were killed and 200 injured at railroad crossings.

* Life jackets would have saved the lives of approximately 3 dozen children who died from recreational boat drownings.

THE TOP SEVEN SIMPLE SAFETY STEPS FOR CHILDREN ON THE GO

1. Safety belts should always be buckled, whether a child is in a motor vehicle or on an airplane.
2. Young children should always be properly secured in child safety seats.
3. Children on bikes should always wear helmets.
4. Children should stop at the road side, look left, right and left again before crossing the road. At intersections, they should pay special attention to turning vehicles.
5. Children should always wear life jackets when around water.
6. Children should always be visible when walking or biking. They should wear light, brightly-colored clothing. At night, they should wear markers that reflect light.
7. No one, especially a child, should ever ride in the bed of a pickup truck.

AS THE RIVER RUNS

Perhaps led by Lee Iococca, American manufacturers have fought back quite successfully. Today, most imports are riding on their laurels. In almost every vehicle category in 1996 American cars have better products at better prices. If the 1970s were the Pearl Harbor of automobile marketing, today is the turning point in the great war for the American auto market.

Yes, it is nice in 1996 to drive down the road and witness that most of the broken down cars at the side of the road are imports.

Driving the roads of America during the 1970s and 1980s was a constant painful reminder of the failure of one of America's most vaunted industries.

Gaping hoods standing open, or riding face down on tow trucks, the American car was dying. The Europeans offered high quality luxury and sports cars, while the Japanese flooded our market with cheap no-frills Toyotas, Hondas and more.

More painful than the loss of national pride was the gnawing reality of the loss of jobs, profits and huge shifts in the balance of trade as our nation catapulted into debt we never dreamed of.

So accustomed to dominating the domestic auto market with frivolous design tricks and trends, American manufacturers ignored the rise in gas prices, the changes in the American family, and the market potential of the imports. Management arrogance and sometimes shoddy workmanship pushed American buyers toward imports.

Imports had become popular in academia beginning in the 1960s. By the 1970s the parking lots of government offices were preponderantly foreign. For a while it seemed as though only American patriots bought American cars and trucks.

Smug owners of imports gloated as they drove along roads where the only drivers in distress at the side of the road were stalled with American cars. Import owners, always on the defensive, bought into a new anti-American culture that said, "All American cars are junk."

Throughout the onslaught of the imports a huge number of Americans remained loyal to the vital notion of buying American. Neither the Germans or Japanese have been able to penetrate the loyal core of pick-up truck buyers. In working middle America you would be laughed out of town if you showed up in an import truck.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Well, heck, just when I thought I'd found a fairly simple way to get the White House to just concentrate on the U.S. President job, instead of going all over the planet working on the World Policeman job, then my plan gets shoved out of sight by the unbelievably dumb "get into the F.B.I. files of about 400 former White House occupants" operation.

My own plan was to go public with the idea that there could be something a little bit unpatriotic about wasting U.S. money and talent solving all of the planet's overseas problems before getting around to solving our own problems. As luck would have it, my first letters to the President, Policy Adviser Lake, and the Chief of Staff, alerting them to what I was doing, got there just when the F.B.I. snafu hit on all fours.

I wonder if I was on the list. I guess I could find out by asking Senator D'Amato, especially, if I told him I was a friend of Leon Panetta, who had helped talk Leon into running for the Congress job. Surely, there must be some way that Senator D'Amato could connect me to the Whitewater scandal, and as long as they pay my bus fare to Washington, D.C. and back, heck, I'll tell them

Trees Into Trash

Those blue containers at our post office, labelled "Paper Only" are a boon, no?

Such a pleasure, to stand there, tossing all the junk mail. So I asked, and was told that our little post office fills six of them a week. And if, as I was told, the United States has at least forty-thousand post offices, that means that every week we send off, to be recycled from our postal system alone, about one hundred and twenty million pounds of paper.

So, thinking further, I contacted the Weyerhaeuser Company, which is in the business of turning trees into paper, among other things.

I got back, promptly, a nice letter from Miss Karen Snyder, an Executive Assistant, with four tastefully designed pages of facts about the business of turning trees into the things we use ... you wouldn't believe ... from artificial snow to liquid nail polish, from chewing gum to fish food ... all very necessary (?) you will agree, except for the fish food.

The Weyerhaeuser people tell me that one 24 inch diameter tree yields approximately 1000 to 2000 pounds of paper. So, if my fourth grade arithmetic is still equal to the challenge, that means that to produce that 120 million pounds of junk paper we're cutting down 60,000 trees a week.

And they all go to make up that stuff we throw away every time we come from our post office box. We open our box hoping wistfully for a letter with a check in it, and find fistfuls of junk advertising, which we promptly toss into the blue bin.

We've come to think of advertising as inevitable, like the weather, always with us. But t'aint so. Advertising as we know it was invented by big business in the 1920s, when stuff produced by new machines and new technologies was piling up on warehouse and factory floors. We Yankee frontier types, frugal, saving, were just not buying. A "consumer" society had to be created. Hence advertising.

So a new art form developed, as that doughty economist John Kenneth Galbraith puts it, "to give (the purchaser) a sense of personal achievement ... a feeling of equality whatever they want to know.

I could mention that I sympathize with the Russians, heading into a Presidential election with nobody, not even the candidates, able to decide whether they want communism or some kind of a democracy. Here in America we're pretty well committed to democracy, but we're going into an election with only one candidate, unless you want to count former Senator Dole. We think we know what we want here in America, but we have a terrible time trying to decide which direction to paddle the boat to get to it.

with his neighbors, divert his mind from thought, serve personal sexual aspiration, promise social acceptability, enhance his feeling of health, well-being, or orderly peristalsis, contribute to personal beauty, or (be) otherwise psychologically rewarding."

And of course there's the status thing. If you consume more, like driving a Mercedes, you are automatically a more important person than your neighbor who drives a Ford, no?

And we cut down 60,000 trees every week just to remind ourselves to buy more stuff.

LETTERS to the Editor

Pacific Grove Museum Slammed For Exhibit

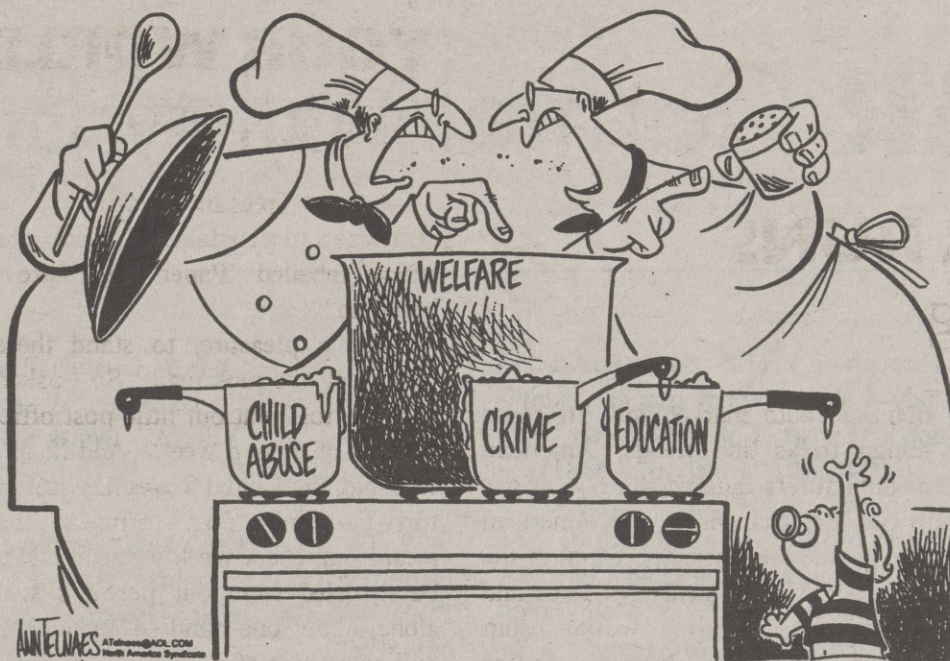

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

The Pacific Grove Natural History Museum was picketed Monday evening, for the first time in its 113 year existence by groups protesting an exhibit they claim "greenwashes" the tarnished image of Pebble Beach Company, the Monterey Peninsula's largest developer.

The Pacific Grove Natural History Museum Board met Thursday and heard from a record audience of 10 concerned citizens representing California Native Plants Society, Save 17 Mile Drive Committee, Friends of the Forest, Responsible Consumers of Monterey, Save Our Peninsula Committee and the Green Party. Each protestor praised the Museum but cited false, out of context, and misleading information for the Pebble Beach exhibit.

The most common complaint was the pattern of boastful praise of the developer's efforts while avoiding all mention of the harsh reality that Pebble Beach Company has harmed the environment, has repeatedly failed to restore environmental damage, and is planning a further square mile of forest destruction and development.

Often criticized was a quote praising golf courses signed by "Audubon Society of New York State." Local Audubon members objected that this "Audubon" was "not the one we all know and love. A golfer created his own "Audubon Society" just to "certify" golf courses."

Others questioned the "Natural Historiness" of lectures on the history of golf courses, the Concours de Elegance and the Hotel and the lack of a lecture on the forest itself. Mary Ann Matthews of California Native Plants Society objected to the display claiming successful sand dune restoration at Spanish Bay. She said the restoration "could not be considered a success by any measure."

Protestors requested removal of false and misleading information, corrections, rebuttal commentary display, and information sheets by genuine environmental organizations, a display on the harmful impacts of toxic chemicals and water use of golf courses, the addition of a display and lecture on Forest Ecology and a display and lecture on the threats to the Peninsula's Monterey pine forest.

Museum Director Bailey explained that the text for the exhibit was written and revised by the Pebble Beach Company. A letter of Bailey's was read aloud by Assistant Director Paul Finnegan who claimed credit for the exhibit concept, describing the Company's first draft as "corporate propaganda" and warning, "if this doesn't change, there will be no exhibit." Director Bailey refused to provide copies of the letter. Finnegan was recently on the board of the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce.

Bailey angrily told the Board that they had no authority to change the exhibit and if they couldn't convince him, the city council would have to force him. Under questioning Bailey admitted he would have to get Pebble Beach Company's permission to change the exhibit.

The Museum Board voted unanimously to schedule a special meeting for Thursday, June 27th at 6:30 p.m. to examine the exhibit and the claims.

Smøe Facts About PG Museum and the Pebble Beach Company

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Recent letters by Ed Leeper and David Dilworth, that question the propriety of the "Del Monte Forest Legacy: A Century of Stewardship" exhibit at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History are ironic indeed, considering the long relationship between the museum and Pebble Beach Company.

The exhibit is a collaborative effort between the Pacific Grove Museum and Pebble Beach Company, which continues a century-long relationship. The original museum in Pacific Grove was built by the Pacific Improvement Company, predecessor to Pebble Beach Company, in 1883. Pacific Improvement Company relocated it to the Pacific Grove Museum's present site in 1902, and later gave that land to the city.

Over the years, Pebble Beach Company has also provided financial support to the museum. In 1989, for example, Pebble Beach Company donated $10,000 to the museum to support the cost of the Dinamation exhibit. More recently, Pebble Beach Company assisted the museum in preparing a whale skeleton for display there. Currently, Pebble Beach Company is underwriting most of the cost of the Del Monte Forest exhibit.

Pebble Beach Company is honored to be invited by the museum to participate in this retrospective on the natural and cultural history of the Del Monte Forest. This exhibit is a sincere effort on the part of the Pacific Grove Museum, Pebble Beach Company and many others in our community, who have sought to create an accurate and comprehensive history of the preceding century in the evolution of the Del Monte Forest.

We proudly invite the public to visit the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History to see the "Del Monte Forest Legacy: A Century of Stewardship" for themselves, and draw their own conclusions as to the propriety and credibility of this exhibit.

Another Compliment for Araby Colton

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

My heartfelt thanks to you for publishing Araby Colton's excellent articles on the environment and wildlife. It's the first thing I turn to after picking up The Sun each week, and invariably I learn something from her.

She's always superb, but in her June 13th column, "Sic Transit Gloria", she outdid herself. I'm having it photocopied to pass on to friends and relatives. I only wish the whole country could read and ponder her words.

Suzanne Sawyer, Manager of Education Programs for the Santa Lucia Preserve, said, "The value of a Native American cultural history program is greatly enriched by the presence of knowledgeable guest speakers and we were fortunate to have Gary and Linda give their time and knowledge to this effort."

Throughout the program which was free to the public and attended by about 45 people, there was opportunity for the attendees to ask questions and view the collection of artifacts. Ms. Sawyer noted, "It was an enthusiastic and successful program and we are already receiving requests to bring it back again next year."

Goal 4: Instill public trust and confidence. The MPWMD has already developed a plan for a focused outreach program to establish a dialogue with and provide information to the community regarding water resource issues.

Goal 5: Manage and allocate the available water supply and promote water conservation. The MPWMD has intervened in PUC hearings related to Cal-Am's application for a rate increase beginning in 1997 increasing revenues about $3 million over three years. The rate increase includes a low income rate and a high consumption surcharge which the MPWMD will support to promote conservation. By July 1, 1996 the MPWMD will develop a plan for the extension of the Pebble Beach Water Reclamation facility. The abandoned Forest Lake Reservoir may be obtained to provide additional storage of reclaimed water. By October 1, 1996 the Water Demand Supervisor, with the policy and technical advisory committees, will develop assumptions and criteria for the future allocations of water. By October 1, 1996 the Water Demand Supervisor, with a new Conservation Advisory Committee composed of

COMPUTER TALK

Val Healey

Part 16 - An introduction to computers at a naively simple level.

In this part we take a short breather after the first 15 parts of this introduction. I hope at least some flavor of what computers are, and what they can do, is beginning to appear. The software of the kind mentioned in the last few parts is revolutionizing our lives and, from the human perspective, not necessarily for the better. The majority of bookkeepers and drafts-persons have gone the way of the typing pool - into oblivion - except for the smallest of companies. Seen from the past this trend was supposed to "liberate" us from mundane tasks. Undoubtedly it has, from the tasks that can easily be accomplished using a computer, and the next aim is likely to be at dispensing fast food, wiping dining tables, cleaning floors, etc., which will push some humans further down the line. Such computer usage will undoubtedly help businesses to keep costs down but it is already causing massive disruption at the human level.

One of the next professions likely to be heavily impacted is teaching. Already one can buy a very good quality multi-media (with sound, graphics and animation) computer for less than $1500 and enormous amounts of educational material is now appearing on cd-roms. Moreover, the costs of computers are plummeting and teacher salaries are rising. How can a teacher, standing by a two dimensional chalkboard and with a limited range of audio and graphics skills, compete with exciting presentations that have audio, essentially three dimensional colored graphics, and animation? In no way can all teachers be replaced by computers, and students have to learn how to interact with one another as well as with computers, but a shakeout is inevitable. My own personal pet peeve; very soon we will be able to buy a good quality computer for the cost of a single dental crown. Monopoly is a joy only to those who control it.

The trend towards more and more computer usage is unstoppable and, with the mind boggling promise of the Internet, it can only accelerate. This is one case when you, dear reader, as an individual cannot beat the system, so join it. Get right with computers. Treat this era of change as a new and exciting adventure and remember that plenty of challenges keep the brain young and healthy. The most difficult thing to do is to stay as stress free as possible. There is no need to despair - rise to the challenge.

To many of those who have been following this series it will become apparent that to learn computers you really must want to learn about them. It isn't just light reading. Computers have an enormous number of little bits all of which must work together, and there is a great deal of learning to do. In the next part we will offer some guidelines to assist those of you who may have had some trouble in the task and then we will be back to the nuts 'n bolts of computers - drives. Finally, for those of you who have Internet accounts, the first 15 parts, in a more readable, slightly edited and formatted form, are available for downloading at <http://www.carmelvalley.com>.
